

THE BOOMERANG CLUE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

It must be a depressing life

Introduction to her I think she laughed. I'll ask them to dinner tomorrow night. I'd like to know what you think of him.

Yes, As I told you I dislike him and yet he's quite an attractive-looking man.

Something in her tone made Frankie look at her quickly. But Sylvia a Bassington French had turned away and was taking some old flowers out of a vase.

I must collect my ideas thought Frankie as she drew a comb through her thick dark hair when dressing for dinner that night. And she added resolutely it's time I made a few experiments.

Was or was not Roger Bassington French the villain she and Bobby assumed him to be?

Mem wrote Frankie on a sheet of paper. One—find out where Roger was on the 16th—day when Bobby was poisoned.

She thought she saw her way to doing that fairly clearly.

Two—she wrote. Produce picture of dead man and observe reflections if any. Also note whether R. B. F. admits being in March hotel then.

She felt slightly nervous over the second resolution. It meant coming out into the open. On the other hand the tragedy had happened in her own part of the world and to mention it casually would be the most natural thing in the world. She crumpled up the sheet of paper and burnt it.

She managed to introduce the first point fairly naturally at dinner.

You know she said frankly to Roger. I can't help feeling that we've met before. And it wasn't very long ago either. It wasn't by any chance at that party of Lady Shames at Claridge? On the 16th it was.

It couldn't have been on the 16th said Sylvia quickly. Roger was here then. I remember because we had a children's party that day and what I should have done without Roger. I simply don't know.

She gave a grateful glance at her brother-in-law and he smiled back at her.

I don't feel I've ever met you before he said thoughtfully to Frankie and added. I'm sure if I had I'd remember it. He said it rather nicely.

One point settled thought Frankie. Roger Bassington French was not in Wales on the day that Bobby was poisoned.

The second point came up fairly easily later. Frankie led the talk to country places their dullness and the interest aroused by any local excitement.

We had a man fall over the cliff last month she remarked. We were all thrilled to the core. I went to the inquest full of excitement but it was all rather dull really.

Was that at a place called Marchbolt? asked Sylvia and dently.

Frankie nodded. Derwent Castle is only about seven miles from Marchbolt. The explained said Roger. But must have been your man. cried Sylvia.

Frankie looked inquiringly at him.

I was actually in at the death said Roger. I stayed with the body till the police came.

I thought one of the Vicars sons did that said Frankie.

He had to go off to play the organ or something—so I took over.

How perfectly extraordinary said Frankie. I did hear somebody else had been there too but I never heard the name. So it was you.

There was a general atmosphere of how curious isn't the world small? Frankie felt she was doing this rather well.

Perhaps that's where you saw me before—in Marchbolt? asked Roger.

I want there actually at the time of the accident said Frankie. I came back from London a couple of days afterward. Were you at the inquest?

No I went back to London the morning after the tragedy.

He had some absurd idea of buying a house down there said Sylvia.

Roger laughed. Then he turned to Frankie. Any points of interest about the accident? It didn't turn out to be suicide or anything?

Oh no it was all painfully above board and some appalling relations came and identified the man. Did you see his picture in the papers?

I think I did said Sylvia vaguely.

I've got a cutting upstairs from our local paper.

Frankie ran upstairs and came down with the cutting in her hand. Don't you think he's good looking? Frankie demanded.

He is rather said Sylvia. He looks very like that man Alan Carstairs.

Has got quite a look of him here agreed Roger. But there wasn't much real resemblance you know.

Frankie went to bed undecided. Everyone seemed to have reacted with perfect naturalness. The only thing she had succeeded in getting was the name of Alan Carstairs.

The Stars Say—
For Friday, Feb 7

THE PLANETARY configurations for this day point to brilliant openings for progress and advancement dignities and honors. These may take one conspicuous by into the limelight or into the recognition of those in high standing and authority. It is a time for reaching for such advanced goals in employment and big business with the assurance of important friendships in the seats of the mighty. But trivial mental agitations should be suppressed and a tendency to extravagance subdued.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of great progress and enhanced personal popularity with honors and high acclaim from those in power and authority. There should be the goal with much influential personage graciously cultivated.

A child born on this day may be conspicuously efficient talented and ambitious and should attain splendid popularity and station in life.

Australia has been increasing its production of gold each year since mining reached its lowest point in 1929.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Modern wives and independent that half the time you never suspect that a girl is married until she starts a suit for divorce.

You can always flatter a married man by telling him that he doesn't look it. But never try telling a bachelor that he has that married look.

When the bride is more anxious to talk about the wonderful places they saw on the wedding trip than about the wonder man she drew you begin to suspect that her enthusiasm for married life has been a little dimmed by the Florida scenery.

You can't tell how much a wife has traveled by the foreign labels on her trunks any more than you can tell how many proposals she has had by the number of men on her stilet.

Somehow no matter how much money a man wastes on gasoline or golf he always figures that his wife could make it all up by cutting down on the laundry bills.

Women are spending less and less on elaborate weddings nowadays—probably because they figure that a simple divorce will cost them just as much as ever.

No man undertakes women and no woman can boast that she actually knows anything about the human puzzle whose last she has been butting 14 years until she reads over his application for life insurance and his income tax report.

When a married woman begins consulting a fortune-teller it is usually a sign that she will soon be consulting a lawyer.

Perhaps two can live as cheaply as one but in these days they think they are accomplishing a feat if they can live together at double the price.

Daily Pattern for Home Use

BY ANNE ADAMS

CHOOSE VERSATILE TWO-PIECE FOR DOUBLE DUTY AND SPRING CHIC. There are astonishingly the list of this delightful youthful dress, for it's sure to be dash- ing when you go into the fall, hav- ing spent a strenuous spring and summer. And what joy in owning one which can be worn in two ways! Don't your fingers get itchy to begin cutting-and- sew your pattern the many ways in which to wear both blouse and skirt separately, whether the blouse of each is valued or not? Why not cotton, silk, crepe or rayon, a splashy plaid (at- tractive in fall), or a white blouse with a splash of blue, white blouse or crepe are sug- gestions for the skirt. Necktie silk as a suggestion for the frock of all occasions.
